

ABSTRACT

A communications system and protocol for a radio communications network including a number of transceiver devices. The protocol ensures that network 5 variables to be shared by all devices are correctly received and updated by all devices. The protocol also provides for accurately detecting the transition from one time slot to another, in a given data transaction.